MONEY IN NEVADA.

Lieutenant Governor Davis Talks of Her Finances and Cattle Kings.

"Nevada's losses in live stock this Winter have been very light after all," said Lieutenant Governor H. C. Davis of the Silver State yesterday to an Examiner reporter. "During the continued blockade a month ago we thought they would be very heavy, but they really don't amount to much. Our cattle are mostly in the North part of the State and the sheep in the South.

We have a dozen or more of what might be called cattle kings. The biggest of them are Russell & Bradley, who have four or five different ranches and 40,000 head. Next, Senator Hardesty of Elko, and Col. Hardin of Humboldt, with 27,000 head each. A C. Cleveland has 10,000, Stofer & Sweetzer of Winnemucca, about 12,000, Bradshaw & Brandstein 10,000 and Todhunter some 18,000. Our cattlemen are all getting rich.

"What about the annexing of Idaho piecemeal to surrounding States and Territories? Well, we don't think much of it. Our 60,000 people think they can get along yet a while. I don't see why anybody need get agitated about us either. We have between $400,000 and $500,000 in our State Treasury in hard cash now, and in addition, we have $600,000 in United States bonds. We don't owe a cent either, and that's a good deal more than many another State can say.

As for the annexation of Southern Idaho to us, as proposed by the vetoed Washington Territory admission bill, I don't know that we particularly care for that either. The people in Idaho want to be annexed, and it would add 60,000 more to our population, but we are not anxious about it, still I suppose there would be no protesting. That part of Idaho is a mining and grazing country, largely."

The State Prison Inventory.

The experts who have for some time past been going over the State Prison, will file their report with the Governor this week.

The article published by the APPEAL on Sunday morning was in such demand that it was found necessary to curtail the mail list to supply those who wanted the paper. Those who have been such strenuous advocates of Bell for years past now admit that his course is no longer defensible, and that in two years more the Institution would have been a total wreck.

Yesterday Messrs. Maish and Kitzmeyer, two of the appraisers, made their reports. The APPEAL gives a few of the items as follows:

Laundry—Old inventory $345, new $153.
Carpenter shop—Old $220, new $71.
Armory and guard room—Old $920, new $387.
Kitchen and dining room—Old $962, new $237.

Some other reports have been filed with the Secretary of State, but they are sealed and will not be made public until the Board meets.

A Wild Cat Caught.

On last Sunday morning Phil Mighels captured a wild cat in a trap, a few hundred yards back of the Holstein ranch. The animal was caught by the forepaw, and breaking the trap from its fastenings, dragged it about a hundred yards away. He did not give up until knocked in the head with a club. The animal was nearly the size of a New Foundland dog and about four feet in length. He had been living on thoroughbred Plymouth Rock chickens for some weeks past and was in prime condition.

Heavy Suits.

Three separate suits were entered in the United States Court yesterday by Adolph Sutro, Nicholas Lunning and T. Vincent, against Lincoln county, for the sum of $480,000, for money due on bonds. This comes within $50,000 of the total valuation of the taxable property in the county.

Journalistic.

On Saturday, Mr. Geft who has for so long acted as the able business manager of the Union, severed his connection with the paper. Mr. Isaac Frohman the editor and publisher of the Index goes below this evening for a vacation of a couple of weeks. Mr. Bob. Gordon will conduct the paper during his absence.

WANTS TO BE PARDONED.

A Life Convict Asking for Assistance to go Before the Board of Pardons.

The Walla Walla Journal says: It will be remembered by old residents that, some fourteen years ago Cal. Green started from Walla Walla with a band of horses for sale to Nevada. He took along two herders, who somewhere in the neighborhood of Winnemucca, murdered Green in a brutal manner cutting off his head and putting it in an old sack. The fellows then went ahead and commenced disposing of the band of horses. Some time afterwards Green's remains were found and an investigation of the circumstances was made. One of the herders took the hint and put himself out of harm's way. The other, named Matheny, from Willamette Valley lingered about until he was apprehended, tried, and by some infinite stretch of judicial mercy sent to the penitentiary for only 17 years. Matheny was only twenty-two years old at the time, and his immaturity may have operated to save him from the gallows. Henow writes to parties here for assistance to go before the Board of Pardons of the State of Nevada. The impudence of the request most forcibly strikes this community, where Green was well known and respected.

The Journal is mistaken as to the locality of Green's murder. It was not committed near Winnemucca nor in Humboldt county, but in White Pine.

THE HERALDIC HUNTER.

San Francisco has finally reached the climax of snobocracy. The Examiner has published the coats-of-arms of the leading families at the Bay, and set the city howling with laughter. A family coat-of-arms is regarded with great awe by the densely ignorant. The fact of the matter is, that nearly every family can, by paying a professional heraldic hunter $5, secure a genuine coat-of-arms. In the middle ages every family, high and low, adopted some sort of a coat-of-arms, just as the savage tribes of America to this day utilize birds, fishes and familiar objects as personal emblems. For instance an Indian boy is born, and the happy father looking out of his tent sees a bull sitting down. He calls the boy Sitting Bull, and in after years he paints the animal on his wigwag. In olden times the farmer adopted the clover leaves, the hunter the deer's head, etc., and every family, high and low, had a coat-of-arms. Most Americans are descended from some of these people, who a few centuries ago chased deer through the bogs, robbed travelers on the road to London, and were hung at Newgate; and all these worthies had coats-of-arms.

There is not today an American in ever so humble circumstances, who cannot, by taking the proper steps, secure a well authenticated coat-of-arms.

A Hot Hole

David Wilson had a well eight inches in diameter bored at a point where hot steam issued from a crevice in Esmeralda county, his object being to get a flow of hot water for bathing purposes. The hole was bored 110 feet, at which depth dry gas issued, the heat of which, was so intense that it caused a suspension of operations. Mr. Knox, who was one of the persons employed by Wilson to sink the well, informs the Genoa Courier that they often placed a vessel over the pipe at the top of the well, and through the medium of the intense heat from below, cooked bread beans and potatoes.—Silver State:
